Although The Bible Seminary has a commitment to graduate every student free of seminary debt, and has designated scholarship funds and other financial assistance relative to helping students find ways to help pay for their education, neither acceptance into any TBS education program nor submission of a scholarship application is a guarantee of financial assistance. Accepted and enrolled students are responsible for the full cost of their program and student accounts must be paid in full by the end of each semester prior to enrollment in any successive semester. Overdue accounts may not only render a student ineligible for future scholarship assistance but may result in dismissal from TBS and legal action to recover unpaid debts.

General scholarship eligibility requirements include: 1) Full-time status (minimum 9-credit hours per semester); 2) Demonstrated financial need; 3) U.S. citizenship or an eligible non-citizenship; 4) A valid Social Security number (for U.S. citizens); 5) Enrollment or acceptance in an eligible degree program; and 6) Satisfactory academic progress. Additional factors include availability of funds, verifiability of information contained in the application, and the merits of need compared to others in the applicant pool.

The Bible Seminary admits students of any race, sex, color, disability, age, or national or ethnic origin to all the rights, privileges, programs, and activities generally accorded or made available to students at the Seminary. It does not discriminate on the basis of race, sex, color, disability, age, or national or ethnic origin in the administration of its hiring policies, educational policies, admissions policies, scholarship and loan programs, and other school-administered programs.
